If you continue to work towards the specified goal, this will be achieved in 3-4 years. The harvests are getting bigger every year. Even with today's very poor cocoa price, the fazenda pays for itself. With the increasing yields, the income improves continuously. The fazenda is farmed organically, totally without artificial fertilizers and chemical sprays. The transports are carried out with their own mules.

The seringa (rubber plantation) is old but provides a good income for a serin-gueiro (rubber cutter).

Both the dried cocoa and the gum are picked up by the buyers at the fazenda.

The fazenda is managed and can be taken over immediately. In addition, the buyer buys the existing company that owns this property. Thus, the real estate transfer tax does not apply and the buyer takes over all concessions and contracts.

Everything is there to operate the cocoa and rubber plantation. The restaurant can, but does not necessarily have to, continue to operate.

Depending on the agreement with car Toyota 4x4 and motor boat aluminum with 40 HP engine Yamaha.

The mansion stands in one of the most beautiful spots in Ilheus, with views of the Santana and Cachuera rivers, the city and the sea.
