ABOUT THE AREA

With a beautiful view of the Aegean Sea, Siki is a traditional mountain village 38km from Volos and at an altitude of 290m. Volos is a coastal port city in Thessaly situated midway on the Greek mainland, about 330 kilometres north of Athens and 220 kilometres south of Thessaloniki. It is the capital of the Magnesia regional unit of the Thessaly Region.

Volos is one of the largest and most beautiful Greek cities, located at the centre of the country, with a port that is among the busiest in Greece. Built at the innermost point of the Pagasetic Gulf, it lies at the foot of Mt. Pelion, where the fresh and salty sea breeze is mixed with the scented mountain air of the homeland of the mythical Centaurs. The city was the starting point of the ancient famed expedition of Jason and the Argonauts, which is one of the best-known chapters of Greek Mythology.

The region's wealth and its long history can be seen in its architectural structure which has an air of elegance and beauty. The grand residences and state buildings, the museums, the early 20th century industrial facilities, and the historic churches are some of the city highlights.

Follow the paved Argonauts Avenue on the seafront and go all the way to the port on its western side, just as the locals love doing when in the mood for a romantic stroll with a stunning view to the open sea. The long seafront is lined with traditional cafés and restaurants and among them you will find the local eateries called tsipouradika, where you will try the traditional tsipouro (a local strong spirit) and a variety of tasty seafood and fish dishes. The pedestrianised seaside Argonauts Way and the passenger port terminal, located on its west end, offer amazing views to the open sea and they are the most popular rendezvous spots for both locals and visitors.

The sights in Volos are so many that visiting them all will prove to be quite a challenging target. If walking is not your thing, there are alternatives: the bicycle lovers among you will be happy to know that there is a 10km long network of bicycle lanes so you can enjoy moving around the city, using a noiseless and ecological means of transport. The old industrial buildings will catch your eye; they are unmistakable evidence of the economic growth.
