MONTECATINI VAL DI CECINA: this beautiful Tuscan village is located in the hills of the Val di Cecina, a few kilometres from the city of Volterra.

In ancient times, known by the name of Monte Leone (Castrum Montis Leonis), it is intimately linked to the nearby copper mines of Caporciano - which became the largest in Europe in the 19th century -, known and exploited since Etruscan times and active until the beginning of the 20th century.

The entire territory of the Valdelsa Val di Cecina is dotted with small villages and hamlets immersed in nature, including Volterra, the city of alabaster and in Etruscan times one of the main city-states, a 20-minute drive away.
