ABOUT THE AREA

Mindo is a village in the Andes Mountains of northern Ecuador. It's known for the many bird species, butterflies and orchids found in the surrounding cloud forest, part of the Mindo-Nambillo Reserve. A tarabita (cable car) runs over the Nambillo River to a mountaintop, where trails lead to several waterfalls, including Cascada Nambillo. Zip lines run through the forest canopy. Tubing on the Mindo River is popular.

Set in the middle of the Ecuador Cloud Forest, Mindo truly feels like a jungle paradise. Surrounded by lush, verdant mountainsides and babbling rivers, you'll instantly feel immersed in the jungle when you arrive in Mindo. Butterflies and hummingbirds are everywhere, flitting between tropical fruit trees and among passersby on the town's few paved streets.

While Mindo is a small, walkable town, it is just minutes away from countless waterfalls to hike, zipline destinations, and much more – including its famous adventure sports and birdwatching excursions.

Another reason Mindo is a great place to visit? It has just enough infrastructure to accommodate visitors without making the town feel overwhelmed or overrun. Mindo has plenty of good food options, too, and accommodations at all budget ranges.

If you don't have time for a proper visit to the Amazon during your time in Ecuador, definitely make sure to add a trip to Mindo to your itinerary to experience some of Ecuador's incredible forests, home to a diversity of flora and fauna unlike anywhere else.
