Not only is this a smart real estate investment but also a potential venture into the holiday rental market. Thanks to the emergence of direct rental sites such as Airbnb and booking.com, this market is going through a golden age right now and Mauritius is consistently one of the most popular locations in this context. This property is perfectly located for residents to take full advantage of the magnificent beaches and areas of outstanding natural beauty that make is island so iconic, but without being too far away from shops, medical assistance, restaurants and bars in the nearby town.

About the Area

Mark Twain once wrote that ‘Mauritius was made first and then heaven, heaven being copied after Mauritius’. For the most part, it’s true: Mauritius is rightly famed for its sapphire waters, powder-white beaches and luxury resorts. But there’s so much more attraction to Mauritius than the beach, and it’s the kind of place that rewards even the smallest attempts at exploration. There’s hiking in the forested and mountainous interior and world-class diving and snorkelling offshore. There are boat trips to near-perfect islets and excursions to botanical gardens and colonial plantation houses. Mauritius is a fabulous culinary destination with great wildlife watching thrown in. And the real Mauritius away from the beach resorts – a hot curry of different cultures and quiet fishing villages – is never far away.

Trou-aux-Biches is a small town with a public beach on the northern coast of Mauritius in the district of Pamplemousses. According to the World Travel group, the beach is one of the most beautiful on the island. They awarded it the World’s Leading Beach Destination at the World Travel Award for 2011.

Trou aux Biches is one of the most beautiful beaches in the north of the island, located between Mont Choisy and Pointe aux Piment this beautiful beach is famous among photographers for its setting and postcard sceneries. Trou aux Biches was elected several times as one of the most beautiful beaches in the African continent and often cited as one of the finest beaches in the world. Although Trou aux Biches is very popular among the locals, the beach is calm and not crowded during the week.

Trou aux Biches with its 3 kilometers of beach lined with coconut trees, white sand beach surrounded by crystal clear turquoise water is a haven for swimming. Far from major tourist circuits, ideal for a day at the beach to perfect your tan, Trou aux Biches is the perfect place for sea lovers. You'll find a host of water sports, restaurants and merchants of ice cream near the beach if you want something refreshing during the heat waves.
