Jambiani is a group of villages on the Tanzanian island of Unguja, part of Zanzibar. It is located on the southeast coast between Paje and Makunduchi. Jambiani has a strong seaweed culture with many farms dotting the coastline and employing 15,000 locals. Jambiani has a beautiful 7 km long beach with swaying palms. In contrary to some beaches in the north, this beach has powdery white sand and hardly any rocks or sea-urchins. The barrier reef lies a few kilometres out, with a beautiful crystal turquoise lagoon in between. The broad lagoon of shallow water is perfect for wading, snorkeling and diving and offers an excellent view of the marine. Thanks to its steady sideshore winds, Jambiani is also an ideal spot for wind- or kitesurfing. A high tide it's nice to swim in the Indian Ocean and at low tide you can enjoy a nice beach walk.

Discover the many nice restaurants in Jambiani. Most of them you can find at the lodges if you walk along the beach. Enjoy the fresh caught seafood, pizza, meat- or vegetable dishes and so much more delicious meals. If you love seafood go to Casa Del Mar to order Lobster and Sea Cigal (tasteful local lobster). It's absolutely delightful. Other good restaurants we recommend are Nur Beach, Blue Reef and The Loop. The Blue Reef has a wood-fired pizza oven and serves the best pizza in Zanzibar and also great cocktails.

Zanzibar is a Tanzanian archipelago off the coast of East Africa. On its main island, Unguja, familiarly called Zanzibar, is Stone Town, a historic trade center with Swahili and Islamic influences. Its winding lanes present minarets, carved doorways and 19th-century landmarks such as the House of Wonders, a former sultan's palace. The northern villages Nungwi and Kendwa have wide beaches lined with hotels

ABOUT THE AREA

Jambiani's classed as a village, although it's really a number of villages all heaped together. You'll find this pretty-as-a-picture location on the south-west coast of Zanzibar. Head here for an off-the-beaten-track experience – the people who live here currently outnumber the tourists.

Set up camp on the beach and the only thing to disrupt your view of the turquoise water will be coconut-heavy palm trees and thatched parasols. Beach days are what this place is all about, and chatting to the friendly locals is as energetic as it gets. Jambiani's got an important seaweed culture – it farms a lot of this plant to be sold around the world. From the beach, you'll get to watch as the locals pull long, green fronds from the ocean. They also pick clams that might later be served to you in one of the village's restaurants.
