Description:

The charming renovations that have been started in this cosy house in Fuensanta de Martos, in the Jaen province of Andalusia need finishing off. The rustic style reclaimed wooden front door leads into a small living area with built in sofa (or bed), large fireplace with a seating area within it and a bread oven. Through a rustic brick archway is the kitchen with stairs, access to a laundry area, then a shower room and access to a walled patio. The stairs lead into 1 bedroom and through into another with further stairs up to the open attic area with great views and access (through a hole) to another room on a lower level which could become a terrace. Lots of thought has been put into this house, it has loads of potential to become a really lovely home on a quiet no through street near the centre of town.
