ABOUT THE AREA

Nkhata Bay is a Malawian port town on the western shore of Lake Malawi. Its striking harbor comprises sheltered bays with forested, rocky headlands. South of the peninsula that juts into the bay, Chikale Beach has clear waters with colorful cichlid fish. The town's ferry port is a departure point for Likoma and Chizumulu islands, with their secluded beaches and trails, plus Likoma's 1911 St. Peter's Cathedral.

Nkhata Bay is at the most northerly point on Lake Malawi reached by David Livingstone during his expeditions through Africa over 150 years ago. Its small sheltered harbour is a focus for the Lake's fishing industry but it is also becoming increasingly important as a tourist centre. As a vibrant port town in the north of Malawi, it is often referred to as the gateway to the islands. It has a wonderful craft market and a bustling (almost Caribbean) feel to the town. With plenty of small shops and a bank / ATM as well as internet cafes, restaurants and bars, and a highly reputed and long established dive school, Nkhata Bay, despite its size, has a lot on offer. Just a 3 minutes drive away from the town centre is a beautiful sand beach, Chikale, where there is a choice of simple lodges.
