Vouliagmeni, Luxury House of 548 sqm House within a complex on a 1957 sq.m plot that is a walking distance to the sea.

The unique design offers terraces that extend to the garden area, providing shade for the ground floor and a view for the top floor.

Transparency is used as a bonding element between the exterior and the interior.

U-glass is extensively used, replacing or camouflaging the solid walls to allow the maximum natural light to come through. At the same time, this choice of glass distorts movement, adding to the residents' privacy and the space's atmosphere as seen from the outside.

Contrasting materials are used to amplify the residents' interaction with the structure.

Specifically, the glossiness of the u-glass is paired with the matte effect of the white cement stucco chosen for the walls, floor, and ceiling. Moreover, the rocks placed around the properties add an earthy element to the composition, with the bigger ones hiding structural elements and storing glass panels, therefore leaving only the aesthetically necessary things in sight.

Lastly, the landscape is designed to complement the composition. Artificial lakes reflect the organic shape, the u-glass, and the vegetation, creating a feeling of seclusion and peace.

Floating paths pass over the lakes and vegetation to connect the ground floor balconies, offering in this way an alternative, closer to nature route.
